

Who is The Career Fox?

Career Fox began as my quest to help people find and connect with their dream job. I have been coaching, guiding, and helping people achieve their career goals to form the ultimate work life balance. I don't want you to waste another day in a job you hate. I don't want you to struggle through another interview process. I don't want you to sit at the computer contemplating how to write a resume that employers want to read! I don't want you to wake up one day and say is this all there is to my life? You can achieve happiness and harmony in your job. You can and are supposed to like your job. It is important to be excited to go to work; it is possible to LOVE your job. If you need any support accomplishing your career goals, Career Fox can help.

I know people; I have connections to your dream companies. I can find you what you are looking for and help you make it as easy and comfortable as possible. I can connect you with the right company with the right corporate culture and especially the right job for you! With risk comes great reward. I am here to challenge you and your goals, I am here to support you to reach your goals, I am here to guide you towards your best self.

Have you ever daydreamed about how great your working life could be? Do you ask yourself how do I get the best job? What am I doing wrong? Where is my dream job? Well, Career Fox can help you answer these questions.

Your dream job awaits…
